If, as the Bard suggested, all the world's a stage and we are merely players, then the question arises: who writes the script for the roles that we play? We present ourselves to the world's stage as we hope the world will want to see us and modify the presentation in response to the ensuing applause and jeers.

As the curtain is closing on your final scene at Central High School, a new act with different characters and scenery will soon be upon you. You have prepared yourself for your new role by the effort and persistence you have put into your past scenes in your life. Future roles await YOU and YOU are the author of your future scripts. As Robert Schidler stated, "The world of tomorrow belongs to the person who has the vision today."

Just as you have had many roles in parts you will play in the future. Some placed upon you by society's demands.

Some of you have chosen to continue formal education. When you assume this that we, as your teachers, administrators, so that you can successfully complete this scene in your life's play.

Others may have chosen to play a part noble and heroic role in which all of your participation as a protector of our great you who have concluded that entering the play. No matter what your new role will tion day keep in mind that the world your new role. John Rusken stated that toil is not what they get for it, but what become?

As your life's play unfolds, there are most, you will share the stage with a in life. I pray that you are as fortunate as spite of all your missed lines, miscues, mance. Be thoughtful and appreciative of you have chosen to share together.

There may come into your life's play smelly poo-poo, runny noses, and with it your life's love are no longer the stars of you become a supporting actor. The one it all better, play catch until your arm is realize the new math is not how you were taught. You pray that they do not make the same errors in judgment that you made when you were a teenager. And for those of you who have promised to not say the things your parents have said to you like "because I told you so" or "this will hurt me more than it hurts you", your mouth will open and you will believe that it is your parent's voice that emits forth. Alas, you finally understand the role your parents were playing to ensure your success in life. Then faster than a bolt of lightning, you will be sitting in the audience while your "baby" receives their diploma at graduation. And through the tears, you will be sitting there, just as your parent will do on May 17th, praying that you have given your child the sturdy stage for their own life's play.

So as you go about your life's play, there will be many scenes that you will be a part of and a myriad of roles that you will assume. Sometimes you will be the star, at other times a supporting cast member, and still in other scenes you may be behind the scene insuring that those on stage have a successful production. My advice to you is to enjoy your own play, have fun with the multitude of characters you will have the opportunity to play, love and respect the rights of others to play their parts as they see fit, be thoughtful as the scenes unfold before you, find pleasure in the diversity of roles that life has to offer you, love yourself, be prepared for the possibility that there will be poor reviews and forgive yourself for them, accept applause with dignity and grace, but most of all, write your play so that you and those around you can find true happiness, so at the end of your life's play as the lights dim and the final curtain is drawn other actors can say you played your roles well.

your life's play, there will be other will be by choice and others will be your role as a student to further your role, remember the characteristics and family have tried to instill in you "act" and move forward to the next in our armed services. This is a are indebted to you for your selfless nation. And still there are those of work force is the role you want to be after the curtain falls on graduation depends on you and how well you play "the highest reward for a person's they become by it." Who will you a variety of roles that await you. For special someone that will be your star I find that person who loves you in and your less than stellar perfor- this great love for this is the stage

Last Will and Testament

Reader: Heather Rheinheimer

Having been appointed as Reader of the Will, I, Heather Rheinheimer, do hereby publish and declare the following to be the last will and testament of the Central High School Senior Class of 2002.

I, Wendy Kelley, being of strong mind and short body, will Daniel Drawbond the ability to annoy the ROTC instructor group as much as I have during the past four years! I also will Brian Kelley the ability to be patient and do well in school.

I, Amanda Hall, being of intelligent mind and short body, will Matthew Priest the ability to be headstrong and to never take "no" or "maybe" for an answer.

I, Shereen Igani, being of open-minded personality and stunning exotic looks, will Austin Hillian a lifetime supply of Depends for those occasional camping accidents and a photo album of McCall to add to his shrine of her.

I, Lindsay Holder, being of sarcastic tongue and funny wit, will to Steven Hill the tenacity to handle his problems without involving others.

I, private first class James Drawbond, do will to my brother, Daniel, all of the BMTs he wants and the position of sergeant major, and that the Chaplain Club follow Jesus with all their hearts.

I, Orisha Green, being of intelligent but lazy mind and small but perfect body, will Andrew Lowe, Cody Stokes, and Jordan Beatty my charming looks and my abilities with women. I also will Trista Watters and Kendra Brown my charming smile and way with words.

I, Tiffany Walker, being of stubborn mind and argumentative personality, will Mr. Kuehn my parking spot, and to my sister, Lindsey, the will power to break out of her shell and be just like me, her big sister, because she adores me.

I, Valerie Sullivan, being of tiny body, extremely loud mouth and total bluntness, will to Josh Sullivan, my little brother, the ability to never care about what other people think about you. Good luck in the years to come. You are cute, smart, and a good Christian guy and deserve anything you want in life. I love you!

I, Brent Eber, being of sarcastic and abstract mind and chiropractor-needed body, will Kenneth Crockett a real car, not to be confused with the Micro Machine that's eternally in the shop, and to always throw it up for the B-Dub.

I, the notorious Chad Poe, leave my popularity, people skills, and ability to deal with difficult situations to my beautiful, loving girlfriend, Kim Stok.

I, Kelly Hardy, being of mostly unsound mind and soon to be sound body, will my patience, if you can find it, to the next JROTC rifle team commander. I lost it somewhere. God bless!

I, Holly Denton, being of lazy mind and kind of round body, will Brittany Moon the ability to get a clue because she doesn't have one.

I, Heather Brown, being of stressed out mind and voluptuous body, hereby will Holly Leckie the right to wear the giant Cheeburger hat with pride.

I, Megan Wilhoite, being of pure mind and sanctified body, will Courtney Howard and Chase Manning the ability to keep God first in their lives throughout the remainder of their high school years.

I, Terra Dobbs, being of Christ-centered mind and body, will my sister Jennifer my love and prayers to make it through her last two years at Central. I love you.

I, Brittany Dill, being of Christian mind and body, will Andrew Lowe my prayers to be a great witness for Christ his next three years at Central.

I, Jennifer Thomas, being of tan body and superior mind, will Nicole Holder an unlimited gift certificate to the Gap. To Courtney Lawrence, I will a membership to Goodwill so she will no longer have to steal Matt's Christmas presents from supplies for children of third world countries.

Being of superb minds and completely different bodies, Katie Wilson, Jessica Scott, and Caroline Harvey, will to Amanda Rogers the ability to refrain from her gluttonous ways and the ability to spend a moment's time without Ryan.

I, Heather Rheinheimer, being of somewhat intelligent mind and Oompaloompa-like body, will to Kristin Hales and Courtney Parham the ability to get taller and to always keep smiling!

The aforesaid wills and testaments of the Central High School Senior Class of 2002 will become effective immediately upon the stroke of midnight on May 17, 2002, upon our final departure from Central High School.

The Lady Pounder Soccer team was "Back in Black" this year. The uniform change was not the only change of the year. There was a new head coach and a new assistant coach. Many of the girls were also playing new positions. Despite all of these changes everyone worked really hard and did their best to adjust. It is fair to say that everyone came away from the season knowing they had learned many things that would help them in their future endeavors.

How Do You Show Your Faith in School?

"As a Christian, I try to exemplify my faith by treating others with the love and respect I would like to receive. Afterall, the greatest commandment is to love one another."

"In school, my faith is shown through my personality, which is usually happy and friendly. Usually, I'm talking to new people and letting them know how I feel about my beliefs."

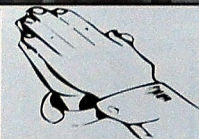

"Living your life for Christ is one of the most important things to do as a Christian. I try to show and share my faith by the way the Bible emphasizes. I want people to know of the same love He showed by His Crucifixion."

"I think I show my faith in school by how I act around others. I try to be a kind, honest, dependable person that others aren't afraid to talk with."

"Being a Christian, I think it is important that we set good examples for others. My big thing is to be patient with others even though I often want to do my own thing. I try to show others the same love Jesus showed me."
